

To file a complaint against a community manager under Nevada Revised Statutes (NRS) 116/116A, you must submit a written affidavit to the Nevada Real Estate Division (NRED). The manager has 12 working days to respond. If unresolved, the state investigates the manager's certification and practices. [\[1, 2, 3\]](#)

Step 1: Attempt to Resolve the Issue First

Before the Division will accept an official complaint against a certified Community Manager, you are required to try to resolve the issue directly: [\[1\]](#)

1. Send your allegations of misconduct in writing (letter or email) directly to the Community Manager.
2. Keep copies of your written communication and any evidence you have.
3. Wait at least 12 working days for the manager to acknowledge and respond to your claims in writing. [\[1, 2\]](#)

Step 2: Contact the Ombudsman's Office

Before proceeding with an official filing, it is highly recommended to speak with a staff representative at the Office of the Ombudsman for Owners in Common-Interest Communities. They can help you identify exactly which NRS or NAC provision may have been violated. [\[1, 2\]](#)

Step 3: File an Intervention Affidavit

If the issue is not resolved, you must file an official Intervention Affidavit. [\[1, 2\]](#)

- Obtain the Form: Download and print the NV Form 514a \(Community Manager Complaint Form\) from the NRED website.
- Document the Claims: You must list only one alleged violation per page and attach all supporting documentation (such as emails, letters, and governing documents) behind each page.
- Submit: Mail or deliver your notarized affidavit and evidence to the nearest NRED office. [\[1, 2\]](#)

Step 4: Division Review

Once submitted, the Ombudsman's Office may first attempt to help resolve the alleged violation. If it cannot be resolved, NRED will investigate. If the investigation uncovers professional incompetence or misconduct, the matter can be forwarded to the Commission for disciplinary action, which may include administrative fines, remedial actions, or the suspension/revocation of the manager's certificate.
